“My Special Cody Boy”

In August 2011, I had the blessing of getting a very special Sheltie from Barb Davis. My husband Bob and I traveled up to meet him. We fell in love with our sweet precious boy named Cody. He became our best and dearest friend. He would lie by Bob's feet and on his slippers – so fond of him. Bob walked with a cane and to see both of them coming in from the yard was a picture of the shepherd with the sheep by his side. It was special!

Cody was not a barker, and had the sweetest temperament; everyone who came to visit just loved him. He loved his walks, the dog park, jogging with me in the back yard, and was a ham for having his picture taken. Sadness came on January 4, 2013 when my husband passed away. I know Cody really missed him, too.

He became the world's most devoted Therapy Dog: mine. He and I were so close during this time and soon I was to lose him to cancer. On August 16, 2013 he left me, seven months after losing Bob. My heart was broken, losing the two loves of my life. However, I can personally say the Lord Jesus Christ brought me through it as only He can. Bob loved you, Cody, and I still love you and miss you so much. You were all we could have ever wanted. This is for you, my sweet, Special Boy!

Mikey's Story

Mikey came to our home after meeting him at a Yappy Hour in Cocoa Village where Barbara from Mid-Florida Sheltie Rescue had a table. Our first Sheltie, Max, had passed away in June 2008 and this was October. We had decided we might be ready to add to our family as now we only had one sheltie, Duncan. Our first impression of Mikey was that he was cute. His fur stood out like he'd put his paw in a light socket which the veterinarian said was probably related to stress hormones. His very long tongue protruded from his underbite mouth which gave him an appearance that made you say..."duh..." Anyway, he was cute as a button but when my husband held him in his arms and they made eye contact, well it was all over but the application and fee.

When Mikey came to us, we always understood we had our path laid out for us. He'd been abused as so many rescues have. He'd spent the majority of his life as a backyard breeder's dog. He lived in one crate with a Great Dane so he'd developed some coping skills that didn't automatically translate into a happy, loving home. Size can really matter when you're a 16 pound dog living in the same crate as a giant. Well, Mikey learned to survive by developing some interesting skills. He specialized in hiding, expecting something awful at any moment, dropping his head, and running away from anyone and everyone. He also learned that the only way to be safe was to try to dominate but only when at home. He initially & only at home, he was quite the scrapper and seemed to believe that he had to fight for everything. When out in the world, even if on the end of a very safe leash with Mom or Dad, he seemed to believe it's better to become invisible if at all possible.

After years of loving him, training him, caring for him, feeding him, and doing everything possible to make a safe home for him, we've come to accept that Mikey has come as far as he may ever come. He's very smart and easy to teach things except that for him and for the rest of his life, the world will be safe with us. And you know what? That's okay with us. He's come a long way and we're proud of him but he'll always be that shy, nervous fella that we've come to love.

With that said, let me tell you what he has learned. He's learned that he can trust us in most ways as he loves to be picked up like a baby, cuddled very close while receiving a belly rub. He's learned that meals come regularly and that he has to sit pretty for his. He's learned to sit, stay, come and he knows down. He's learned that he can wait until his Mom comes back from all the way across the house after having told him to "stay" and cookies often follow her return. He's learned that the back yard is for running and chasing balls and squirrels. He's learned to run and play in the leaves when visiting the Blue Ridge Mountains which he does four times a year. He's learned that life can be good and just once in a while, if no one is looking, it's okay to let your fur down, jump on the sofa, roll on your back with your soft, warm tummy exposed and take a nice nap with the sun streaming in the window. He's learned what love feels like.

I'll leave you with this picture at Mikey's job. His official title is "First Assistant to the Senior Vice President" at a major investment firm. Initially, this job started as part of a plan to help Mikey socialize with others outside of our immediate family. Well, he's been in this job for about 3 1/2 years and so far he's learned many new skills and put some old ones to good use.

He specializes in sleeping, snoring very loudly, drooling on Dad's papers, sleeping, hiding under the desk if anyone comes into the office, and increasing the overall levels of oxytocin in both the staff and the clients. Occasionally, he'll even help out by calling some special clients.....you know the ones that love dogs. His most recent project was about a dog supply company's stock. Here you can see him making calls to give his Dad a break. He has formed a very tight, loving bond with Dad and his frequent petting sessions assist to relieve stress in Dad. He loves putting on his tie (leash) for work, suffers great irritation if Dad goes to work without him, and can almost reach the buttons for the elevator at work. I'm not sure if he'll get that raise he's working for, but I know he has real job security. You know the security? It's knowing that you've found your forever home and they'll always be your family even if you just want to stay who you are today.

SAGO

Sago (f/k/a Laddy), rescued from Mid Florida Sheltie Rescue on February 1, 2014, successfully completed Novice Rally Class in August 2014 and Advanced Obedience Training in October 2014. Very busy summer but so much fun. On to Advanced Novice Class beginning December 3rd and then his CGC in February 2015.

This sweet boy, now 2 years old, has come so far in just 10 months since we brought him home. He has learned to trust and is becoming more comfortable and sillier after such a rough start to life. We are his 7th and final home.

SHARAH

Sharah attended training to become more comfortable walking on a leash and to be around other people and dogs and boy has it really helped. What a little social butterfly she is. Sago, rescued from Mid Florida Sheltie Rescue in February 2014 and Lulu, given to us by neighbors, where Sharah, rescued from Mid Florida Sheltie Rescue in May 2014, completed Basic Obedience Training and took first place. Not bad for an "old" girl at the age of 13. Sharah's cheerleaders this time.

NORA & MARK'S STORY

We lost our precious, beautiful sheltie-girl, Allie two years ago on August 3. Ever since that time--our remaining sheltie, Missy--has been by herself. My husband & I had been talking about fostering--for at least a year. About 16 weeks ago Barb sent us a picture of Candi and said that she needed a foster home. We took her in and had fun watching her blossom out into a very pretty and winsome little girl. She was adopted one month later.

About a week went by--and we got another email picture from Barb. This time it was a momma sheltie and three puppies... We took in Mamma Cass (Cassie). What a DIFFERENT kind of a sheltie girl she was! FEAR was her middle name! And she was overweight--as well. It took us many weeks to even begin to win her trust--and she even got away from us--once--and ran around our block twice--with us close behind...

We decided that Cassie would not be an easy one to place into a furever home--and we had grown accustomed to her little brown face--and so we ADOPTED her! Hey Barb, I'll bet you knew all along--that WE were going to become her furever home... Barb just knows how to place the right sheltie--into the right home--even for fostering... LOL!

We've had our Cassie-girl for almost 13 weeks, now; and she is just blossoming every day! The most routine behaviors are cause for celebration--at our house: a tail-wag, a sheltie smile, a vigorous gallop across our backyard... Mark! Cassie came when I called her name! I called out to her,

"Cassie, do you want a TREAT?" And she came trotting down the hall--to see what Momma had to offer... She is also eating all kinds of new foods: a slice of a Cutie mandarin, a tiny taste of kiwi, a piece of pineapple, steamed squash... And the list goes on! When she first came to us--she would ONLY eat her kibble; and if I put a couple of beans or some pumpkin on top--she would eat all of her kibble and leave the "strange" foods in her dish. What a girl!

Every day is a new day--for Cassie; and we look forward to seeing what wonderful new changes each day will bring out in her!

Thank you Barb! We LOVE our new sheltie girl!

Nora & Mark Allen

Thank you Nora & Mark for sharing!

In August of 2014, Mid Florida Sheltie Rescue received a Thundershirt Grant from the Petfinder Foundation. Thundershirts and an Award Letter were sent to our organization.

WHY Three Collies Are Better than TWO

I've been involved with collie rescue and have had collies for the last 25 years; of course always rescues BUT always two. As with many people I had heard that more than two dogs would create pack behavior and I figured hey, as long as my collies have each other, they are fine and all is perfect.

My Beloved collie Bonnie died at age 20 , 1 1/2 years ago when my Beshert was only 9 and still playful. At that time, after 3 months of grief (you all know THAT drill, ugh) I got a little rough-sable-collie-girl, about 16 months old and the two of them became fast friends and played together, hung out together, the whole nine yards. She was so small compared to him we named her Bitsi.

Life was good but we noticed that around age 11 Beshert didn't want to run around with Bitsi. Since she is only now 2 1/2 I wondered if she wasn't being deprived of a young "playmate" but my husband insisted that "2 is enough" so I didn't press the issue.

However when a young 1 y/o male rough-sable collie recently became available I pulled in favors and got my husband to go along with adopting collie #3.

We have never seen a dog adapt to a home so quickly. At first there was a little territorial growling over food and toys. That lasted all of 3 days. Then slowly he (Bentley)/not the "new" Bentley by the way, that's what we named him joined the other two to hang out by the pool. Then he and Bitsi started their daily rituals of running like racehorses around the lap pool in the back yard.

Now he is with us only 4 weeks and he is totally "in the routine". He gets in bed to cuddle, not to wake us up and the other two have made room for him. He and Bitsi SHARE toys. They all drink out of each other's water bowls. They all come, sit, etc and patiently WAIT for treats. There is no issue with food or with "anything" and we scratch our heads as we are now SO entertained by the three of them (yes, Beshert is even playing again!) that we wonder what in the heck kind of "pack behavior" were we afraid of?

Three is infinitely more entertaining. Three is more collie to cuddle. All three are at my feet as I type and I love that even more than two. Three are just as easy to feed, walk, groom, and take to the Vet as two.

Have you ever seen a collie take a chewy bone, eat half and then drop it at another collie's feet? Well, that's Bentley infatuation with Bitsi who actually will not take a bone from her "humans" but graciously accepts and chews the "gift bone".

As a bonus, Bitsi, although alpha, has had a problem with "submissive peeing" since we got her. We suspect that's why she was surrendered. Well, after 2-3 days of "her new baby" being here, we have not had ONE episode of "peeing" so that is a major bonus! She acts like more of the "mom" with both of her "boys" than the alpha.

Lastly, with all of the collies that keep coming across my computer both my husband and I are super glad that we have given a third collie a good home and a great life. If you have two, I promise you that you will love having three. If you have only one, doesn't that one deserve a playmate? I hope you don't think I'm being judgmental here, I'm just saying if you haven't "thought about it" at least "think about it".

Best wishes from a fellow Collie-fanatic, "Dr.Kim"

SPORT

June 10 will be 8 years since we picked up Sport (formerly Spot). We brought him home and let him get acquainted with his new home. My wife let him out in the back yard and a few minutes later she went out to look for him. She came in screaming that Sport was gone. We went looking for him all around the front and found him in our neighbors yard. He was just checking out the area. Our fence was the standard picket built to code with a 4 inch space between pickets. At 12 pounds he was able to go right through that. I installed chicken wire along the bottom of the fence and that kept him in.

We want to thank you for 8 years of joy. Sport has been a magnificent pet and has brought happiness to our home. We get so many compliments as to how good looking he is and so well mannered. He rolls over for treats (our grand daughter taught him that) and that impresses everyone.

I am not the best photographer, but I did want you to see what he looks like now (at about 28 pounds). I believe that he has had a good life and he certainly has enhanced our lives. He is our BABY. Our children grow up and become adults and have lives of their own, but Sport remains a baby for his entire life. We still must feed him and care for him, but that is the joy of having a pet as wonderful as he is.

Thank you for bringing him into our lives and for all of the good work that you do.

FEATURED SHELTYE

CLEO

Cleo is a sweet little girl. She needs to lose quite a bit of weight. She is working on it. Cleo loves to bark. She came into rescue with her sister. They do not need to go together, but a four legged playmate would be nice as she has never been an only dog. Application, vet reference, and home visit required.

If you are interested in adopting, please fill out an adoption application online at www.midflsheltierescue.com
